

NOBLE WOMAN PASSES
PEACEFULLY TO THE ENDMRS. STEELE BAILEY DIES AF-TER SHORT ILLNESS EARLY
FRIDAY MORNING.

Mrs. Ella Hart Bailey, wife of Dr. Steele Bailey, died at her apartment at the St. Asaph Hotel last Friday morning at four o'clock Jan 27, after a short illness. With her at the end were her husband, and many friends and loved ones. Her daughter, Mrs. Charles Harvillie arrived a few hours too late to see her mother again in the flesh.

Mrs. Bailey was born Sep. 27, 1857, reared and educated at Columbus, Ga., and came to Stanford in 1873 and taught school with Mrs. Balle Trueheart in the female college five years. She was married to Dr. Bailey Nov. 18th 1878. This union was blessed with two children to whom she gave the devoted attention of a scholarly and Christian mother and lived to see them both successfully established in their profession. Mrs. Bailey was highly educated and wrote extensively for magazines and received several prizes for the best essays on various subjects. While she lived on the farm she studied domestic science, horticulture and agriculture, and was one of the best informed persons in the state on these branches. She was an accomplished musician and skillful artist and left an indelible impression upon her pupils for good. She was an earnest member of the Presbyterian church, the organist for many years, took great interest in the work of her church and the aid societies and was a natural and logical leader in all these good works. It will be difficult to find another to fill her place. Though gone, she will not be forgotten. She lived and died in the Christian's hope and was always eager to work and labor for Jesus and do what ever her hands and mind found to do. Her devotion to her family and mother, Mrs. Lucy St. Clair, was indeed beautiful and glorious to behold. Mrs. Bailey was well read in medical science and a student of her own case and from her invalid life was mindful that life was quite uncertain and death not far away in her own life. She taught herself to be ready and resigned at any time, but pressed on to reach the goal in the Christian life. Each day and week she lived nearer her Savior.

On the 14th of November, 1908, Mrs. Bailey moved to Mammoth, Utah to be with her children, Dr. and Mrs. Charles Harvillie and Dr. Steele Bailey, Jr., and wife and her husband who were established in the practice of medicine and surgery and superintendent of Tintic hospital, but on account of heart trouble and climatic influences which proved detrimental to her health, she and her mother moved to Rome and Columbus, Ga., and then returned to Stanford her former home, and resided at the St. Asaph Hotel until her death.

Her family have the sympathy of the entire community in the loss of the good daughter, wife, mother and grandmother. Death was caused by cerebral hemorrhage and paralysis. This good woman lingered for one week and passed into the bright beyond, sustained and comforted by unflinching trust and approach to grave one who was the dispenser of his couch about him and lies down to pleasant dreams.

Funeral services were conducted by Rev. Joseph Ballou of Stanford and Dr. F. M. Green, of Danville in the hotel and at the grave in Buffalo cemetery, in the presence of a large concourse of sorrowing friends and loved ones.

Police Judge John N. Menefee, Jr., had a field day in his court Saturday. Not only were several participants in recent "prize fights" in town scheduled to come before him, but a number of youngsters who had been playfully rolling the "bones" were down for a reckoning, and the Judge had no mercy on any. Several negroes who merely happened to be on the premises at the time also got theirs, and will doubtless keep out of a second of the merry rattle in the future. The cases of the belligerents were postponed until later dates, and all concerned have decided to turn over new leaves. The J. N. mentions no names.

MERSHON CAUGHT
AND CONFESSESOFFICERS LAND YOUNG CRIMINAL WITH HIS PAL—WANT TO GO TO PEN.

After a long hard chase, Will Mershon was captured by Chief of Police Carter and Detective John Meeks last week and with him Coleman Traylor another youngster, who seems to have gotten into bad ways, and has so far proved incorrigible. At their examining trial before Judge Bailey Thursday, Mershon confessed to the various crimes with which he was charged and both were held to await the action of the grand jury next month.

Chief Carter and Meeks had a long and weary search for the youngsters, and finally landed them while milking a cow belonging to Will Cordier near Rowland. Mershon was doing the milking in an old tomato can, having already supplied his own hunger, and Traylor being unable to milk, was of the lookout for the officers. Meeks spotted the boys, and shadowed them for an hour or so behind a post until Chief Carter could get to them. He slipped upon them along a worm fence and arrested them before they were aware that he was coming and they were the most surprised pair of youngsters imaginable.

At their examining trial Mershon freely told of the various crimes that they had been guilty of. He said that with "Buckskin Bill" Dalton, he had broken into a car at Mitchellburg where they secured six quarts of whiskey, a half gallon jug of whiskey, and several pints of brandy. He and Traylor and another boy had broken into a car at Hemp, he said, where they got a number of pairs of shoes, which they sold, several pairs being disposed of to negroes in Stanford. Mershon also confessed to forging the name of Sol Kimore to a check which he cashed at T. B. Hammond's. Both he and Traylor said that they wanted to be sent to the penitentiary at Frankfort, and not go to reform school at Lexington, where they said they get whipped almost every day. As Mershon is now 18 and Traylor 19, it is very probable that their wishes will be gratified in this respect when their cases are acted upon by the grand jury and circuit court next month.

HELM LEADS FIGHT AGAINST SALARY GRABOUR CONGRESSMAN AT FRONT IN SUCCESSFUL EFFORT TO PREVENT ANOTHER RAISE.

A dispatch from Washington last Friday said:

Representative Helm was a leading spirit in the successful fight in the House to prevent the proposed increase of salaries of the Federal Judges.

In a ringing speech against the increase, Helm said "a great deal has been said here on the floor that these salaries should be raised on account of the high cost of living."

"The democratic party is not responsible for the high cost of living. May I be permitted to remind this House that the men who are called upon to pay these continuous raises of salaries that this Congress is imposing on the taxpayers of the country are also suffering from the increased cost of living, and that they have children to be educated as well as the officeholders."

"I have recently noticed in the papers that the salary of the president of the steel trust has been reduced from $100,000 per annum to $50,000 per annum. If this stupendous business corporation sees proper to reduce the salaries of its officers, it does occur to me that the prudent thing for Congress to do is not to increase the salaries for officers, but it is possible, to reduce them."

"I dare say that there has not a day passed since congress convened that there has not been some effort made along the line to increase the salaries of men who draw their living at public crib."

"It is an endless chain affair, and it does seem that the time has arrived when the brass should be set, when a half should be called and in the name of that vast horde, that great army of taxpayers who are being bound down under the burdens of taxation municipal, state and Federal, I appeal to this House to vote against this amendment."

tion of Lincoln county have been recently started in kitchens that contain ranges that sit on the wood floors. A hole came in bottom of fire box and coals dropped through and did the rest. Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Carpenter Mr. and Mrs. W. O. Speed and Mrs. Sallie Bailey all had very narrow escapes from losing their homes in this way.

Some idea of our "good roads" (init) is evidenced by the fact that it takes eight hours to travel over rural route No. 1 from here with a real good horse. Do we need a "good roads" association? Most assuredly we do. The county judge will appoint the organizers at once, and notice and names of appointees will appear in these columns next week.

Mr. L. W. McWhorter will accept the superintendency of Green river county road from end to end.

The road from Geneva to Jumbo is in very bad condition and needs attention. Appoint some one that will attend to it. There are ten or fifteen car loads of gravel at the branch below the Terry's. Put it on the road.

Lace curtains lighting from a "too close" lamp on Friday evening in the home of Mrs. Fannie Cabell on Main street were extinguished promptly as the fire brigade responded to the alarm quickly.

Lancaster Merchant

DIES AFTER A SECOND STROKE OF PARALYSIS

Lancaster, Ky., Jan. 30.

Mr. Jacob Joseph, a leading dry goods merchant of this city, died last night at his home here, after suffering a second stroke of paralysis. He had been in declining health for some time, having fallen on the street in Chattanooga about two months ago but later partially rallied from that attack.

He was 57 years old and served several terms on the graded school board. He was a prominent member of the Knights of Pythias. He was a native of Germany, but came to this country in his youth and had amassed a competency in the dry goods business.

He leaves a widow who was formerly Miss Lizzie Fox, of Eatons, O., two sons, Mr. Adolph Joseph, of Peru, Ind., and Arthur Joseph of this place, a daughter Mrs. Charles Davis of Chattanooga, Tenn., and a brother Mr. Sam Joseph of Cincinnati.

The body was taken to Cincinnati for burial.

"ST. ELMO" COMING.

After entertaining millions of people in every part of the United States, "St. Elmo" will visit this city, next Friday night Feb. 3rd appearing at the opera house. Augusta Evans' charming narrative is told in play form by a capable company of actors and actresses, who have been selected with great discrimination to make each individual character stand out.

The play was adapted from Miss Evans' novel by Nell Twomey, who has been careful to retain the best material of the book in the stage version. He has lost none of the fast pacing Southern atmosphere.

Rev. James V. Logan, of Middleboro, city has been awarded a bronze medal and $2,000 by the Carnegie Commission for his heroism in saving a boy, D.
